ABOUT ME:

I am a Chartered Psychologist working in Central London. I see individuals for private, confidential counselling for a wide range of issues. I also offer couple's therapy and bereavement counselling. I draw on a range of therapeutic models so sessions are tailored to you, not vice versa. Models include: Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (CBT), Existential Therapy, Acceptance + Commitment Therapy (ACT), Psychodynamic approaches and Person-Centred Therapy. I also offer EMDR, a therapy for processing trauma. I am a Teaching Fellow at the University of Surrey and an erstwhile broadcaster and writer. I embrace a wide variety of activities which offers me a broad view of the world enhancing my work as a psychologist. However, my main passion and focus remains with clients who may be unable to live life in the way they would like and who perhaps hope to change things for the better.

ONLINE THERAPY and COUNSELLING/SKYPE

Although face-to-face sessions might be preferable, I also offer appointments via Skype, Face Time, Zoom, Whatsapp and by phone if you are unable to attend in person. During the current Covid-19 lock down however, face-to-face sessions are not possible.
